

Probability and Statistics Problems Arising from Internet IR

Zhiming Ma
Academy of Math and Systems Science
Institute of Applied Mathematics, CAS
No.55, Zhong-guan-cun East Road
Beijing 100190, China
`mazm@amt.ac.cn`

Abstract

Internet has been a rich source providing plenty of interesting and challenging problems in Probability and Statistics. In this talk I shall present some problems arising from Internet Information Retrieval. In particular I shall talk about some problems concerning Browsing processes and concerning two layer statistical learning, which I have recently been involved in when we are collaborating with Microsoft Research Asia.